have but to throw the bridle on the back of fancy to see the thing. There were the bands and the banners; the military swinging by stopping as though moved by clockwork; the more enthusiastic, even if more irregular tivic organizations; Governors and resplendent staffs; the "distinguished guests" in carriages. Last, yet not least, there were the shoulder to shoulder vociferous thousands looking on. After which marchers and onlookers all went off to dinner.

There was an inaugural lunch at the White House, the first Democratic inaugural lunch in an even twenty years. How about 1917? Will it be a Democratic or a Republican lunch The answer rests with Mr. Wilson. If he will but do what the people elected him to do, the party will be in power.

Should Have No Trouble.

...With heart of courage, Mr. Wilson should have no trouble. As I've printed more than once, it requires no superhuman intelligence to make a good President. The way lies as openly obvious as Pennsylvania Avenue. Any one with wit enough to drive the vil-lage bus should be able to keep it. What is it when all is said, but sticking to the right side of the road and turning to the right when you meet somebody? The single White House risk is that from one side street or another there will surely come rush-

Shockee Council, No. 89. Royal Arcanum, will hold an important meeting to-night at 8 oclock at Lee Camp Hall. In addition to initiations there will be a luncheon and refreshments.

The Express describes Mr. Wilson's address as that of an academic professor called upon to deal with practical polities, full of noble sound, but difficult to tell what ness to undertake it.

THE BIG NEWS

BY JAMES J. MONTAGUE. Don't talk about your thunderbolt that drops from clear blue

Just wait and gather breath to gasp, for here's a piece of news That's jolted half the whiskers off of Justice Charles E. Hughes; That's staggered C. F. Murphy; that has turned Joe Bailey pale,

That's stopped Bill Sulzer's talking with a short and shuddery

You've heard it-what? You ain't? Great Scott! Bill Bryan's

With shouts that sound through every street; Bill Bryan's got

No more he flits from stump to stump and hands out vibrant chat

And murmur, "Gee! just go and see! Bill Bryan's gone to

Until Bill shed his platform clothes and took up his new cares,

But now the State Department's filled with many a curious

I saw him dictate letters, and the sweat poured from his brow.

Too bad he's got no time to talk; the dear old days are past.'

About the way they ran things on the dear old yellow Platte;

But with his fountain pen in hand he writes to foreign Kings

And all the wondering payroll fleet their public duties shirk,

All sorts of notes and protocols and diplomatic things,

The people hereabouts discussed their little own affairs;

Alack a-day! old William J. has got a job at last.

The Daily News says: "President many the paraders waited in line on the street. This has always been the practice, but Mr. Wilson, with some consideration for the standing soldiers and civilians, cut the luncheon as short as possible. He are it standing and took exactly twenty minutes.

To-night the President was the guest of honor at a dinner given his classmates, Princeton, '79, at Shoreham Hotel. He reached the hotel about 9 o'clock and got back to the White House and to bed as soon as

TERMS SECRETLY SETTLED

Conclusion of Pence to Be Formally Announced Thursday.

[Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.]
London, March 4.—A Belgrade dispatch to the Dnily Mult to-day says:

"The powers to-day offered their offices in mediation to the Servian government. The government will reply after consulting the allies. It is learned authoritatively that this offer is only a formality, as the peace terms have been secretly settled and the conclusion of peace is to be formally announced Thursday."

Ouldn's Novel Hero Dics.

London, March 4,—Licutemant-Colonel Sir Joseeline Fitzroy Bagot, M. P. for the Kendal division of Westmorland, is dead. Down to the end of his life Sir Joseeline, who was born in 1854, was considered one of the handsomest men in Parliament. He is suid to have been the model taken by Oulda for the guardsmen in her early novels.
